

Rosemann Reaffirms Commitment to Historic Downtown St. Louis

Reaffirming a commitment to Downtown St. Louis, Rosemann & Associates, P.C. has relocated their St. Louis design studio to the Old Post Office Building. Longtime business residents of Downtown, Rosemann will continue to offer architecture, interior design, engineering and planning services from this unique location.

“We are particularly excited about our new location in this historic place and about being in the heart of Downtown’s Post Office Square” said Jarrett R. Cooper, AIA, with Rosemann’s St. Louis office. “We honor the integrity and noteworthiness of this distinguished landmark in our Downtown.”

Constructed of Missouri red granite and Maine gray granite, the building was designed in the French Second Empire style and resembles its contemporary in Washington, D.C., the Old Executive Office Building. Rosemann’s new space, located at 815 Olive Street, Suite 14, introduces contemporary elements that embrace and maintain the historic integrity and attributes of this revived Old Post Office.
